OVERVIEW

Ms. Wang received her Master of Science degree in Applied Physics. She began practicing law in 1997. She joined NTD in 1999. Ms. Wang was invited to the headquarters of Philips to receive European patent law training in Europe in 2005 – the only one outside counsel from China to do so. She was also the first outside counsel from China to be invited to the headquarters of Intel to learn about the US patent system in U.S. in 2008.

Ms. Wang has a wealth of experience in the field of telecommunication, computer science, photoelectronics and medical instruments. Her practice primarily involves patent prosecution, patent validity, patent infringement litigation, patent search and analysis, risk assessments, and IP due diligence. Ms. Wang, as lead counsel, has in-depth patent litigation cooperation with Qualcomm in the fight against Meizu and in the battle with Apple in the patent invalidation and infringement litigation cases. She is also the lead counsel on behalf of Huawei to handle several patent invalidation cases and parallel patent infringement litigation cases in China. She also represents Philips, Intel, Microsoft, FCI and Maxim for several invalidation administration litigation /infringement litigation cases in China. Ms. Wang has an excellent reputation in many multinational companies such as Philips, Intel, Qualcomm, Microsoft and Huawei.

Ms. Wang is also the designer and co-developer of the computerised management system for docketing patent applications for NTD Intellectual Property Attorneys.
